The DOEER MOOC

Supported by the available Best Practices, Framework, and Guidelines, the online course on equality-based practices is the main output of the DOEER project.

The online DOEER MOOC course, freely available on a special platform created within the project, aims to provide, test, and certify the acquisition of adequate competences on equality in the world of work.

The DOEER MOOC offers a multidimensional and multidisciplinary approach to the topic, comprising eight lessons prepared by partners from academic and training institutions within the project partnership.

The modules, enriched with additional bibliographical material, deal with the following topics:

- Equality, human rights, and democracy in the digital transformation
- Understanding and promoting equality practices
- Identifying and addressing inequalities
- Equality-based practices
- Social impact of equality-based practices
- Economic impact of equality-based practices
- Equality-based practices for business professionals
- The Added Value of Equity in Tourism Education and Business

The DOEER third project meeting in Ljubljana

The project team met in person for the 3rd time on 10-11 of April 2024.

Organized by the Slovenian partner GOOD PLACE in Ljubljana, this meeting offered all partners the opportunity to evaluate the progress of the action and the completed and delivered outputs.

Through a participatory process based on detailed discussions and continuous exchange of ideas, the project team could refine the original work plan to the scope of achieving the most possible improvements of the expected results, whilst regularly progressing in the implementation of DOEER.
